

KF Reading Guide for NHG

Intro and Chapter 1: *The Search for Glory*¹

1. What question becomes our new criterion for what we cultivate or reject in ourselves? (15.2)
2. What is a better way of dealing with destructive forces in ourselves? (15.2)
3. What is our prime moral obligation? (15.3)
4. When we lose the neurotic obsession with self, what do we become free to do? (15.3)
5. What is the real self? (17.1)
6. What three things are necessary for healthy development? (18.1)
 - A.
 - B.
 - C.
7. What is “basic anxiety?” (18.3)
8. What are the three prevailing attitudes that children might adopt to solve their conflict? (19.3)
 - A.
 - B.
 - C.
9. What do people desperately need? (21.1)
10. How does alienation from the real self occur? (21.3)

11. What does a person alienated from himself desperately need? (21.4)
12. Through what does a person seem to fulfill the need for identity, power, and significance? (22.1)
13. What becomes the perspective from which neurotics look at and measure themselves? (23.2)
14. Once people believe that they have found a solution to their inner conflicts through the idealized self, are they willing to give it up? (24.1)
15. In neurosis, what happens to the energies driving toward self-realization? (24.2)
16. Into what more comprehensive drive does self-idealization grow? (24.3)
17. What is the most radical drive toward actualizing the idealized self? (24.4)
18. How do neurotics try to achieve their goal of remodeling themselves? (25.1)
19. What is the most obvious element of the search for glory? (25.2)
20. Where is the drive toward external success most strongly applied? (25.2)
21. The success that neurotics desire roughly belongs in which two categories? (26.1)
22. What is the last and most destructive element in the search for glory? (26.4)
23. What are the two general characteristics common to all neurotic trends? (29.3)
 - A.
 - B.

24. The need for indiscriminate supremacy makes us indifferent to what? (30.2)

25. What are two other qualities of the compulsive drives? (30.3–31.1)

A.

B.

26. How do you react when you are resisted, obstructed, or blocked?

27. What does a healthy imagination enable us to do? (32.2)

28. In neurosis, what lends imagination its tenacity and power? (32.4)

29. What work of the imagination is more injurious than daydreaming? (33.2)

30. What is the most striking characteristic of the search for glory? (34.3)

31. With whom is the neurotic competing? (35.1)

32. What two things does a person need for well-functioning? (35.2)

A.

B.

33. What are all neurotics loath to recognize? (36.1)

34. When it comes to our particular illusions about ourselves, we are averse to what? (36.4)

35. What is the basic difference between healthy strivings and neurotic drives? (37.4)

36. What motivates you to invest in your own growth or development??

37. From what does the search for glory spring? (38.2)

38. In what process do neurotics become uninterested as they seek to attain glory? (38.2)

39. In the search for glory, the emphasis shifts from “being” to what? (38.2)

40. Compare healthy strivings and neurotic drives. (38.3–39.1)

Neurotic Drives

- Compulsion

-

-

-

-

Healthy Strivings

- Spontaneity

-

-

-

-

41. What two powerful desires tempt us to sell our soul? (39.2)

A.

B.

42. In an effort to save our lives through neurotic structures and self-idealization, what do we in fact lose? (39.2) See Matthew 16:24–26.

¹ This reading guide refers to the 1991 edition of Neurosis and Human Growth: The Struggle Toward Self-Realization by Karen Horney, published by W.W. Norton and Company Inc. New York.