

Upper Forehead Occipital Hold

Place the palm of one hand over your forehead and the palm of the other hand over the occiput, the area on the back of the head where the spine meets the skull.

While maintaining this connection with your hands, breathe and move your head in whatever direction you wish or wherever your head seems to want to go. Follow your inclination.

Continue to allow your head to move around while breathing and holding your hands in position until the pain is relieved, until you feel somewhat dazed, or relaxed, or until your head feels like it has finished the work.
